3.Security is, personally, the most engaging topic, both because I have always been foremost concerned with the privacy of my own electronics and because it seems to be the foundation by which all operating systems are designed.